Married Dec. 6, 1923, to Lillian Otilia Johnson, who was born in Ogema, Wis., the daughter of Andrew Johnson and Alma Lundstrom, both of Swedish ancestry. There is one child.

In some reminiscences, Mr. Danielson writes- "I recall as a boy in Scandinavia playing around the dam which furnished water power for the flour mill and feed mill, owned by Grandpa Wrolstad's brother John. They had two daughters, both teachers. John was considered quite wealthy, owning the only mansion-type house in town. I also remember the old rink, a dance hall with its Saturday night dances; the latter were rather rough, with drunken fights and brawls.

"When I was eight we moved to Iola, a year later at nine I was to have been adopted by Ole Wrolstad. I stayed there three years. They had a large purebred Guernsey farm, even selling calves to Germany at fifty dollars ahead. They also had a milk route. I learned how to milk at the age of nine. I was up at four a. m. rode horseback over a mile to bring in the cows. I would milk about five of the cows, then bottle the milk out of a pitcher, about 150 quarts in all, and cap the bottles. After breakfast, Ole and I would leave for town for our delivery. I did all the running to pick up the empty bottles and milk tickets. Ole took care of selling the tickets and the credit. We returned home by noon in time for lunch, whereupon we began washing the bottles. We bottled milk twice a day. I took this for three years, then ran away.

"I went to Sunday School in patched overalls, never had spending money, and found little chance to attend school. I earned five cents for every rat I trapped, but still have the money coming.

"My first job was as a combination clerk, bellhop, and horse caretaker, earning eight dollars a month. Later I worked in a livery stable, hauling traveling salesmen around and answering the telephone. I worked in logging camps, waiting tables, and in harvest fields from Nebraska to the Canadian border.

"Following my service in the Army, I served an apprenticeship as a painter. We now have our own place on the water in Fox Lake, Illinois. I am retired and 76 years of age. "

Son of Ole Olsen Wrolstad. Born in Drangedal, Norway, April 8, 1849. Emigrated with his parents in 1843 to the Muskego settlement, moving in 1844 to the town of Ixonia, Jefferson County, and in 1855 to the town of New Hope, Portage County. Enlisted Nov. 5, 1861, in Company 1, 15th Wisconsin Volunteer Regiment, serving in the Civil War until Feb. 10, 1865. After a training period at Camp Randall in Madison, his regiment was involved in the attack at Island No. 10, served in the trenches at Chattanooga, assaulted Mission Ridge, served later at Lookout Mountain and Orchard Knob. Mr. Wrolstad is credited, along with Andrew Torguson and a few others, with being the first up on Rocky Face Ridge in May, 1864. Jerry Rosholt, in his book OLE GOES TO WAR, wrote: "The mountain blocking the Union advance on Atlanta was called Birds' Roost. It is high and its slopes are steep. Confederate troops were on top, determined to keep the Northerners from reaching the town of Dalton and the city of Atlanta. On May 7, 1864, General William Sherman's army was drawn up in front of the mountain, its vanguard against the foot of the mountain, so close that the Confederate troops on top amused themselves by rolling stones down on the men below. The Wisconsin 15th was in the middle of the base of the mountain side called Rocky Face Ridge. Sherman ordered the attack. Sergeant John Wrolstad of Company I was chosen to lead. Very early the next morning, Wrolstad and his squad stripped off their haversacks, caps, and canteens, taking only rifles, knives and a few rounds of ammunition. Silently they began to climb, slipping hands and feet into crevices and clefts, clutching at brush and bushes that grew on the mountain face. As each man moved up a little, he would lean over, reach down and pull up the man below him – all in silence. Finally they gained the top. Sergeant Wrolstad was the first man up. He gathered his squad around him and the fell upon the sleeping Southern soldiers. The fighting was severe and short. Wrolstad's men controlled the mountaintop and Sherman's army marched past." He was mustered out at Chattanooga.

He was a logger and storekeeper at Northland until 1893, when he retired and moved to Scandinavia. He built and operated the flour mill in Scandinavia. Helped to organize Scandinavia Academy in 1891. Herald of March 1957, in 1914 "Jonathan S. Yoder offered to put up a store building in Yoder, Oregon, if responsible people would operate it. The proposal was made to Olavus (Louis) Wrolstad, who agreed to it, and moved his general merchandise stock from Barlow to start the Yoder store. Barring a small intermission in the 1930s, the Yoder store has been in the hands of the Wrolstads ever since it was started. 11

Helen Wrolstad has described this store: "The exterior has a high, false front. Inside there is a large central area with a balcony running around it. Here groceries, tools, and general merchandise have always and still are sold. In the forties, some time, my dad built the big feed warehouse beside the store. After that, he put in frozen food lockers. There is a big house built to the back of the store. A door passes from its kitchen right into the store. The family has always lived right there and kept the store open long hours, six days a week. Everyone helps when needed. My sister Mary and I used to play in the big attic above the store. We'd find school books that had belonged to all our aunts and uncles. Also I well remember dressing up in old clothes, celluloid collars, and funny hats that had been for sale at one time but had been tucked away in a corner for years and years. Some days we even roller-skated up there and I still don't know how Daddy could have waited on customers below as it would have been so noisy. THE HALVOR OLSEN WROLSTAD FAMILY

A2- D HALVOR OLSEN WROLSTAD

Son of Ole Olsen Wrolstad. Born Sept. 21, 1847, in the Rock River settlement, Jefferson County, Wis. Farmed for most of his life near Peru, Wis. He had a blacksmith shop on his farm, performing smith work for himself and his neighbors. He was also a very capable carpenter. He died Jan. 14, 1935, and was buried in the North New Hope Lutheran Cemetery. He was married June 1, 1874, at Peru to Maren Roe, who was born at Ashippun, Wis., Dec. 18, 1852, the daughter of Ingebret Pedersen Roe (April 1823-March 9, 1872) and Karen Solverud (1822-1913). She died Nov. 30, 1939, and was buried in the North New Hope Lutheran Cemetery. Halvor and his family belonged to the North New Hope Lutheran Church. There were ten children.

Jeffrey Wrolstad says concerning "Besta og Bestefar": "Halvor and Maren Wrolstad raised their family about a half mile north of Peru Store. Both brothers, Halvor and Martin, selected land close to the old Ole Olsen Wrolstad homestead which Martin bought from his father at Peru. A few remains of the old log buildings first built by Ole still stood in the early twenties. These buildings were built according to the plans of the buildings erected on the old homestead in Norway, and were located north of the Peru store and west of the house which now remains there.

"Halvor owned a good dairy farm, raised dairy cattle and maintained a large orchard. He enjoyed raising fruits and vegetables, had two large apple orchards and usually worked a large strawberry patch, berries, and fruits of all kinds.

"Halvor was a man of many capabilities, able to do blacksmith work, shoe horses, and perform carpenter work, all equally well. Still, he could take time to sit down to light his pipe with a sliver from a cedar post which he lit from the kitchen stove fire. He would then go over by the window and sit smoking his pipe, looking down the hill toward the Peru Store. He was a quiet man with not much to say, but he fulfilled his social obligation in a growing pioneer community.

"Maren Wrolstad displayed an example of unselfishness and concern for her children, neighbors and friends, as was often found in the pioneer woman who did much with the little she had. She was always ready to help someone and share with someone in need. As a young child going to Peru school, I would stop in to see Grandma and Grandpa on cold winter days, warming myself by their kitchen stove. We would hardly ever leave without a cookie or being served a dish of blackberry sauce from Grandma. 11

Another grandchild, Mrs. Martin Aanrud, notes that her grandmother had beautiful hair, a gift she passed on to her daughters and granddaughters. The Wrolstad hair is heavy, coarse, easily trained, blonde to reddish brown.

A2D5C-2 KATHRYN RUTH WROLSTAD

Daughter of Jeffrey Harlan Wrolstad. Born in Watertown, Wis., Aug. 3, 1943. Graduate of Cambridge High School in 1961. Oshkosh State University, 1961-1963. University of Wisconsin-Madison, 1964-1965 (B.S., history). Two years (1965-1968) with the American Red Cross in Japan and Vietnam. Received the Civilian Service Award. Was recreation supervisor in the military hospital. From 1968 to present employed by the American Cancer Society, having the following positions: Executive Director, North Shore Unit, Evanston, Ill. Executive Director, Montgomery County Unit, Maryland Division; Crusade Director, Maryland Division, and presently the Director of Professional Education, Illinois Division.

Her Red Cross experience is best described in her own words. "Upon completion of my bachelor's degree at the University of Wisconsin, I joined the staff of the American Red Cross. The job offered excellent travel opportunities, and in nine months I found myself with travel orders for the Far East, specifically, Japan.

"My first year of work in Japan included two assignments: one at Camp Zama and finally in Yokohama. The year was one of interesting experiences in Japan and with the Japanese people.

"In Japan, Mount Fujiyama plays a very important role in the life of the Japanese. It is important both as a natural resource and as a religious symbol. With true tourist enthusiasm several of my friends and I decided to participate in this phase of Japanese life. With little physical conditioning and even less mental preparation, we commenced our assault on Mount Fuji. "Those who have seen this mountain can undoubtedly conjure images of a magnificent snow-capped mountain sparkling in the setting sun. It is indeed that. It is also a huge, pebble-covered hill, crowded with lines of people trying to reach the summit.

"The first step in climbing the mountain is to get into line. There is a never-ending stream of people climbing the mountain. We followed a foot path stamped out by thousands of devoted Japanese. Luckily for us four Americans, the path was well trod. After many hours of effort we reached the top of the mountain. It was upon reaching the summit that I found new insight into the ancient Japanese saying, 'He who climbs Fuji once is a wise man, he who climbs it twice is a fool. '

"Shortly after our journey up the mountain, I received orders to report to the 'Pearl of the Orient, ' Saigon, R. V. N. I arrived in Saigon as the only female on our plane. This ratio continued throughout my stay. In Saigon I received my permanent duty station, Cam Ranh Bay. If Saigon is the Pearl of the Orient, I believe that Cam Ranh is the bed of sand on which the pearl rests. I stepped off the plane in Cam Ranh and saw in all directions vast quantities of white sand. The only thing that broke the monotony was the vast quantities of men. In the next six months, I would realize that in that short span of time I saw everything there was to see on the base: men and sand. The war was not a reality there. The hospital was very modern, and our living quarters were plush. The only people on the base involved with the conflict were the pilots who flew daily missions. Their exposure was limited in this way also.

"My separation from the war lasted for six months, when I found myself with orders to report to DaNang, R. V. N. My new duty station was a very busy navy hospital. The work day went from a very leisurely eight-hour day to one of at least twelve hours. The patients were no longer clean, neat little people, but men straight from the battlefield with war still in their eyes. Much was demanded from all of the staff at that hospital, but I believe that all of us gave everything we could, and that we did willingly.

"The hospital day of a Red Cross girl usually began with a visit to all of the patients who had been admitted during the night and early morning hours. It was imperative that this be done immediately, since the stay in our hospital was only a few hours. The Red Cross supplied, free of charge, the little comfort items we all take for granted. A bar of soap, a razor, shaving cream, etc., look pretty good when you don't have it. Taking care of these basic needs and the many other communication problems the men generally had with the families kept us very busy. One little touch: We tried to remember birthdays. Occasionally, we would discover that one of the patients had been admitted on his birthday, so we would try to make the day a little special for him. One particularly busy day, the nurse informed me that one of the sergeants had a birthday that day. I knew the man and also knew he was what the Marine Corps would consider the perfect sergeant -cold. It was a busy day, and the temptation to forget this man was high; however, I did manage to locate a cupcake, and with a single candle I trooped into the ward singing my usual solo 'Happy Birthday. † That great big hunk of granite cracked a bit, as he saw the cupcake and realized that it was for him. There were tears in his eyes. I learned a lesson that day.

"My six months at DaNang went very quickly. Before long I was getting ready to return to the States and to see my parents again after two long years. My departure from Viet Nam was not to be a quiet one. The Tet offensive occurred during the last three weeks of my stay in R. V. N. The Nordic blood of my ancestors really got a run. The offensive occurred during a period of declared cease fire. All of us were taking things rather easy, when the base underwent its first attack. The sound of a rocket being fired into the area which I was occupying proved to be a great motivator. The combat helmet I had looked at in such disgust for months immediately became a permanent part of me. The attacks continued off and on for several days. There was activity all over the country, causing the hospital to be extremely busy. There were times prior to that period when I believed that I had given the job all that I could. I soon found out that I had a great deal in reserve, and that when pressed, many more things could be done. The offensive gradually slowed down, so that my departure from the Orient was not delayed. My experiences in the Far East were very similar to the things faced by many of the people in this book. I would enjoy having an opportunity to 'swap tales' with some of these people, but since history does not allow this luxury, I am delighted for the opportunity of sharing our experiences in this book.

THE MARTIN OLSEN WROLSTAD FAMILY

A2- G MARTIN OLSEN WROLSTAD

Son of Ole Olsen Wrolstad. Born in the Town of New Hope, Wis., Feb. 2, 1856. Died March 19, 1919, and was buried in the South New Hope Lutheran Cemetery. He was married Dec. 15, 1881, to Ingeborg Johanne Wrolstad who was born Dec. 28, 1856, the daughter (A6-C) of Jørgen Olsen Wrolstad and Asberg Johanne Ellingsdatter Naas; died May 17, 1932, buried in the South New Hope Cemetery. There were six children.

Martin's granddaughter, Helen, has written: "I have been asked to write what I can about my grandfather, Martin O. Wrolstad. This is a bit difficult, since my personal recollections consist of the tall stack of pancakes on his plate (which I tried to emulate and didn't get by with) and his mustache.

"My brother Bjarne and I were the fortunate ones who grew up next door to Besta and Grandpa's farm. Books were everywhere - living room, bedrooms, closets and hallways. Besta once remarked that Grandpa bought books from anyone and everyone who came to the door. Bjarne remembers finding in the attic stacks of 'Youth's Companions' and Horatio Alger books which he devoured as a boy.

"Grandpa's interest in learning was evidenced in many ways. In a copy of a letter he wrote to Rasmus B. Anderson at the University of Wisconsin, he states that he had attended Waupaca High School for a time before running out of money. Since then he had worked for his father, saving his money; now, nearly twenty-five years of age, he was inquiring if it would be possible for him to study law. 'I have for a long time tried to make myself as knowledgeable as possible in the English language, by reading English newspapers and books. I have been postmaster now for four years, and have been town clerk for a time. So all I can say is that I understand English passably well. 'But he admitted that he was behind in some respects. Anderson replied that he was not too old, but suggested that he study for a year privately with a lawyer, to see how it would go. The cost in Madison would be about two hundred dollars a year. 'Villien er mere end Halvdelen. 'Why, and if the matter was dropped there, we do not know.

"Martin also corresponded with several people for the express purpose of practicing the use of English. He and Andrew Nerlien debated the subject: 'Resolved, that married is more preferable than single' 'Another correspondent, Don R. Chamberlain, who must have been well educated, was to correct his grammar.

"Not being able to get a formal education himself, Grandpa showed his continuing interest in Christian education by sending all of his children to church-affiliated schools, Oliver to Luther College and the others to Wittenberg Academy. A though he was buried on Bjarne's sixth birthday, Bjarne 'knew' long before that he too was going to Luther College.

"He wrote in his letter to Anderson that he had been postmaster for four years; actually he served until the postoffice in Peru was discontinued in 1907. He was the first clerk of the Town of Alban in 1878. He was one of the organizers of the Peru Cooperative Creamery Association around 1900. He also was instrumental in organizing the New Hope Norwegian Mutual Fire Insurance Company in 1887, serving as treasurer until his death. His son, Alfred -- our father -- succeeded him, holding the position until his death in 1955. Martin was elected county treasurer around the turn of the century, capturing every vote in New Hope, winning him the election. He only held this office for one term, but maintained an active interest in politics all of his life.

"His progressive attitude was also reflected in his farm. The big, red, round barn was a landmark for years. It certainly had its advantages in convenience, with the silo in the middle. Along with the spacious white colonial house, it must have been an impressive looking farm in its day. In three orchards he raised a large variety of apples, a large vegetable garden, strawberries, raspberries, and rows of currant bushes. There was a large two-story granary, a grain barn, a pig pen, chicken coops, and a potato cellar with a large work shed above. An advertisement in the Portage County Plat Book of 1915 shows him a breeder of Pure Bred Ayrshire cattle.

"I know that Grandpa was active in church affairs and that he maintained a Christian home, but whether or not he held any church offices, I do not know. I do know that his Christian influence was felt in his community and among his many friends. The number of friends with whom he corresponded will attest to this..

A2G-1 JORGEN OLIVER WROLSTAD

Son of Martin Olsen Wrolstad. Born on a farm near the village of Peru, Wis., Oct. 27, 1882. Attended Luther College, 1899-1906 (B.A.) and Luther Seminary, 1908-1911 (C. T.). Between college and seminary he had taught at the Lutheran High School in Wittenberg, Wis. Following his ordination on July 23, 1911, he was called to Kansas City where for six years he served as a traveling missionary. One interesting episode during this period was a trip of 250 miles to baptize a child whose Norwegian parents wanted the rite performed by a Norwegian minister. In January 1918 he was called, to serve the First Lutheran Church of Granite Falls, Minn. Here he assisted in bringing about the organization of the American Lutheran conference in the district, a conference representing the union of the Swedish Augustana, the Norwegian Lutheran, the Norwegian Free Church, and the American Lutheran Church. He at one time or another held most of the offices in the conference, including that of circuit president, president of the Luther League, and financial secretary of the southern Minnesota district. In secular affairs he served for six years on the school board, and held office in the Commercial Club.

"According to a story in the "Granite Falls Tribune,"¹¹ he enjoyed reading books dealing with philosophy, history, and biography. He derived much pleasure from golf and fishing, and was a loyal rooter for the local football team. The Rev. A. E. Hanson said, "He was the youngest old man I knew"; while a lady at the Woodlake church said to a non-Lutheran, "There is the cutest little old retired minister who goes to our church."¹¹

In 1940 he moved to Newport, Minn., where he served the Newport Lutheran Church until his retirement in 1954. He died in Minneapolis on April 29, 1963, and was buried in Lakewood Cemetery there.

He was married in Mankato, Kans., Sept. 27, 1917, to Emma Adela Everson who was born in Mankato, Jan. 23, 1887, the daughter of Ever Everson and Bertha Sophia Oneson. After the death of her husband she lived with her daughter in Minneapolis until her death, Jan. 24, 1970. There are two children.

service began with her being the first woman to work for Northwest Airlines at the Milwaukee airport, and included 25 years as a field representative, the record for miles flown by non-flying employees, the record for being the only person to make a business trip to every Northwest Airlines office, and the record for being the only woman to receive Northwest Airlines' highest annual award, the Sales Department Employee of the Year. For the first 20 years "on the road" she was by far the best-known woman in the company. She is the only woman in management who was assigned to Tokyo and the Orient Region for a year; in fact, she is the only woman who has ever been assigned to the Orient Region. She has been around the world once, over the Pacific 49 times, over the Atlantic 17 times, and believes she has the layman's record for Lutheran churches attended. Harriet lives at 7008 Penn Avenue, South, Minneapolis where she belongs to Woodlake Lutheran Church.
